LITURGY

Sacraments put us in touch with Christ, which in turn puts us in touch with God. In the Sacrament of Marriage, husband and wife make Christ present to each other. They do this especially in the marriage embrace which enables them to bring forth children. They also do it in the many signs of love they give each other throughout the days and years of their marriage. Together they make Christ present to their children. Together they make Christ present to us as they live the sacrament of marriage.

It takes two baptized spouses to have a sacramental marriage. For a Catholic to marry validly, the Catholic needs to submit his or her marriage to the Church. The person does this either by marrying before a priest or deacon or by obtaining permission from the archbishop to marry before someone else.

Although a bride and groom tend to look upon the ceremony in which they marry as their ceremony, it properly belongs to the Church. The ceremony involves public worship of God, liturgy. The act of mutually pledging their bodies with all their fertility to one another gives worship and praise to God. All those present join in praising God with them.
